Bravo Company

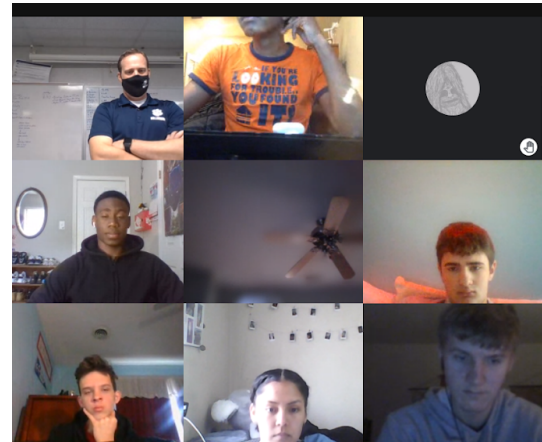

February 2021

Company Commander: Cadet Captain Sheffield

First Sergeant: Cadet First Sergeant Thomas

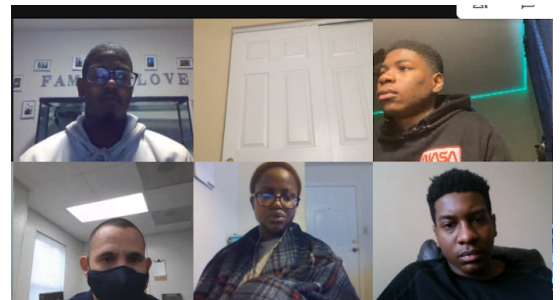

Bravo Company notable events:

- An Army recruiter came in to talk to Bravo Company and listed opportunities the Army has and the different careers in the Army. Many questions were asked and time was taken to answer them, much was learned and it was a very exciting experience.
- Cadets worked hard on creating and finding solutions for some of the problems we could expect at the military ball and summer camp, many problems were brought up but with our great minds combined we found solutions for them.
- For many parts of the month cadets had worked with each other on figuring out new activities to do for our upcoming summer camp, with this being said cadets are working on it and finding out the problems and solutions.
- Cohorts are returning back to school, Bravo Company is still continuing to work the same while having students physically in the school learning.

Achievements:

- Cadets worked to help physically train a healthful living class and learned about how to work out together. We got many students to turn on their cameras and participate, there was plenty of communication and dialogue between cadets and healthful living students.

- Working with each other more has been a positive experience, we are now realizing just how powerful our minds are together and how powerful we are as a group.
- Smooth pt sessions, many times during pt we have squad leaders lead the session and move into breakout rooms with their squad members in them. With this happening there is more participation and more involvement going on.

Cadets of the Week: Cadet Douglas, Cadet Gevawer, Cadet Hooper, and Cadet Nixon

Summary:

This month, while short, has been a very action packed month. As cohorts finally return to school we are making this transition as smooth as possible. Cadets worked hard figuring out new ideas and activities for our summer camp happening this summer. Cadets really enjoy explaining their ideas to their peers and to provide feedback and solutions. Bravo Company continues to define the word: family, and that is what is so special about our company!
